Finding a Proofreader

The first step was to find a suitable proofreader. The learner wanted someone who was a native English speaker, familiar with business terminology, and willing to provide constructive feedback. They searched online for proofreading services and found a British guy who met their requirements.

Requesting Proofreading

The learner contacted the proofreader and explained their situation. They provided their business document and requested proofreading services. The proofreader agreed to help and set a deadline for the completed work.

Benefits of Proofreading

The learner received several benefits from having their business document proofread:

- Improved Grammar: The proofreader corrected grammatical errors, such as subject-verb agreement, tense consistency, and punctuation.
- Enhanced Vocabulary: The proofreader suggested more precise and professional vocabulary to convey the learner's ideas more effectively.
- Clearer Writing: The proofreader reorganized and restructured sentences to improve clarity and flow, making the document easier to understand.

li>Increased Confidence: Having a native speaker proofread and approve their work boosted the learner's confidence in their writing abilities.

Feedback from the Proofreader

The proofreader provided detailed feedback on the learner's writing. They highlighted areas where they could improve their grammar, vocabulary, and writing style. The proofreader also commended the learner on their overall progress and encouraged them to continue practicing their English writing skills.

Requesting a British guy to proofread their business document was a valuable experience for the intermediate English learner. They received constructive feedback on their writing, which helped them improve their grammar, vocabulary, and writing style. The proofreader's insights and encouragement boosted the learner's confidence and motivated them to continue learning and developing their English language skills.
