The June 2024 LSAT is coming up soon! Are you prepared? In this article, we'll provide explanations for all of the questions on the June 2024 LSAT prep test.

Section 1: Reading Comprehension

Passage 1:

The author argues that the current system of education is failing our students. He cites statistics showing that students are not performing as well on standardized tests as they were in the past. He also argues that students are not being prepared for the workforce.

Question 1:

What is the main argument of the passage?

Explanation:

The main argument of the passage is that the current system of education is failing our students.

Question 2:

What evidence does the author provide to support his claim?

Explanation:

The author provides statistics showing that students are not performing as well on standardized tests as they were in the past. He also argues that students are not being prepared for the workforce.

Passage 2:

The author argues that we need to invest more in renewable energy sources. He cites the fact that climate change is a real threat and that renewable energy sources can help us reduce our reliance on fossil fuels.

Question 3:

What is the author's main argument?

Explanation:

The author's main argument is that we need to invest more in renewable energy sources.

Question 4:

What evidence does the author provide to support his claim?

Explanation:

The author cites the fact that climate change is a real threat and that renewable energy sources can help us reduce our reliance on fossil fuels.

Section 2: Analytical Reasoning

Question 5:

A company is trying to decide which of three new products to launch. The company has collected data on the sales of each product in different regions of the country. The following table shows the data:

Product	Region 1	Region 2	Region 3
Product A	100	150	120
Product B	120	100	110
Product C	110	110	100

Which product should the company launch?

Explanation:

Product A has the highest sales in two out of the three regions. Therefore, Product A should be the company's first choice.

Question 6:

A group of friends is trying to decide where to go on vacation. The friends have different preferences for different types of activities. The following table shows the friends' preferences:

Friend	Beach	Mountains	City
Alice	Yes	No	Yes
Bob	No	Yes	Yes
Carol	Yes	No	No
Dave	No	Yes	No

Which location should the friends choose for their vacation?

Explanation:

The friends can choose either the beach or the city, because these are the two locations that all of the friends are willing to go to.

Section 3: Logical Reasoning

Question 7:

All dogs are mammals. No mammals lay eggs. Therefore, no dogs lay eggs.

Is the argument valid?

Explanation:

Yes, the argument is valid. The first premise states that all dogs are mammals. The second premise states that no mammals lay eggs. Therefore, the that no dogs lay eggs is valid.

Question 8:

Some fruits are sweet. All apples are fruits. Therefore, all apples are sweet.

Is the argument valid?

Explanation:

No, the argument is not valid. The first premise states that some fruits are sweet. The second premise states that all apples are fruits. However, the that all apples are sweet is not valid, because it is possible that some apples are not sweet.

Section 4: Writing

Question 9:

Write an essay that argues for or against the following statement: The government should provide free college tuition to all students.

Explanation:

There are many different arguments that you could make in your essay. You could argue that providing free college tuition would make it more affordable for students to get a higher education. You could also argue that it would help to reduce the amount of student debt that students have to take on. However, you could also argue that providing free college tuition would be too expensive for the government. Ultimately, the best argument will depend on your own personal beliefs.

Question 10:

Write an essay that analyzes the following passage: The author argues that the current system of education is failing our students. He cites statistics showing that students are not performing as well on standardized tests as they were in the past. He also argues that students are not being prepared for the workforce.

Explanation:

In your essay, you could discuss the author's main argument and evidence. You could also discuss your own thoughts on the current system of education. You could agree with the author's argument, or you could disagree with it.
